

MAKES DAINTY JABOT

PRETTY ORNAMENT DEFT NEEDLEWOMAN CAN FASHION.

Small Outlay for Materials Is All the Expenditure Required—Only a Few Yards of Black and Colored Ribbon Needed.

A dainty jabot which will be greatly admired by her school girl friends can be made at small expense by the girl who is deft with her needle. It is of black velvet ribbon decorated with knots or "buds" made of satin ribbon in pastel colors. For the foundation of the jabot use one and one-quarter yards of black velvet ribbon one-half inch wide, which may be bought for ten cents a yard. First measure off a piece long enough to go around the neck (over a collar), allowing a margin for pinning, and lay this piece aside for use later. With the remainder of the ribbon make four loops, two of them one and one-half inches long, and the other two one inch long, and arrange these loops to form a stiff bow. A long piece will be left, which should be cut into three strips of varying lengths and these sewed firmly to the back of the loops to form streamer ends. It is not necessary to have a piece of ribbon crossing the loops, as the buds conceal this space.

The buds are made of satin-faced ribbon one-half inch wide, which can usually be purchased for five cents a yard. Each bud will require three inches of ribbon and three of a dark shade of the same color. One color may be used for all the buds, but a variety of tints gives a prettier effect, and naturalness may be sacrificed to beauty in a combination of pink, lavender and blue buds on the same jabot.

To make a pink bud, for example, cut off three inches of the light and three inches of the dark pink ribbon and sew them together with cut edges under. Beginning with the darker end and holding the satin face toward you, roll the ribbon tightly and catch it with neat stitches of silk as you roll, constantly turning the upper selvage in so as to present a smooth edge on the surface of the bud. As you approach the end of the strip try to make the bud turn the cut end under to prevent ravelling.

In order to give more naturalness to the buds a tiny "leaf" may be made and attached to each one. Green satin ribbon one-half inch wide is used for the leaves. A piece of this ribbon one inch long is twisted to form a point, the cut edges are wound tightly with sewing silk and the bud is set upon this leaf and attached with invisible stitches.

Six buds, two of each color, are used for one jabot. Fasten one bud of each color to the end of each streamer, turning cut edges of the ribbon up under the bud. The other three buds, one of each color, are grouped artistically at the center of the loop bows. When all the buds have been fastened in place the strip of velvet ribbon which was first cut off may be sewed firmly at the back of the jabot to serve as a means of fastening it to the collar. If it is desired to wear the jabot on top of a chiffon rosette this strip will not be needed, and the length may be used to form additional bows and ends. The illustration gives an idea of the completed jabot.

Equal quantities of tincture of benzoin and glycerin are excellent for the complexion.

For heat and itching of skin, camphor added to starch powder will be found soothing.

When the hand is injured by burning, or in any other manner, the finger rings should at once be removed, as serious results may follow if the hand should swell.

If one fears a draught from the open window in the bedroom, have the opening at the top covered with a strip of muslin and keep the window open the year round.

A serviceable addition to the invalid's work basket is a horseshoe magnet fastened to a ribbon or tape of sufficient length that it can be dropped to the floor to pick up scissors or needles.

Monarch's Odd Menu.

Peter the Great loved, and most frequently ordered for his own special enjoyment, a soup with four oysters in it, gruel, pig, with sour cream for sauce; cold roast meat, with pickled cucumbers for salad; lemons and lamprays, salt meat, ham and limburger cheese. He began dinner with cabbage water, and closed the banquet with goblets of burgundy.

Average ability has to work hard, talent can get by under a pall, but it takes genius to loaf successfully!

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

NEW BISMARCK OF GERMANY

Germany has another Bismarck. He is Alfred von Kiderlen-Waechter, who is secretary of foreign affairs and who is the big man in Germany's foreign relations. It is he who set Europe by the ears over the Moroccan situation.

Kiderlen-Waechter has been secretary of embassy at St. Petersburg and Paris and counsellor of embassy at Constantinople. He is a linguist, speaking the leading languages of the continent and being as proficient in English as in his own native German.

Two years ago Herr Alfred was a comparatively little known member of Germany's diplomatic corps, holding the post of minister to Roumania. He was rated as a man of ability and force with a more salient and sharply defined personality than that of the average government official, but the public heard little of him. Recently he has been the man of the hour in Germany and probably the most talked of statesman in Europe. For the events that precipitated the international crisis with its menace of impending war he more than any one else was responsible.

Herr von Kiderlen's active career has been entirely in the diplomatic service. Entering the foreign office in 1878, he has gone through the usual mill of slow promotions from embassy secretariats in St. Petersburg, Paris and Constantinople to the post of minister to Copenhagen in 1895 and to Bucharest in 1900. His career, however, has not been without its ups and downs.

NEWPORT SOCIAL INSURGENT

During the past season there has been insurgency in the ranks of Newport swiftdom which started a near panic in the ranks of the "old guard." The leader of the social insurgents was Mrs. John R. Drexel, who is here pictured, and the captain of the standpatters was Mrs. Ogden Mills. Newport is to select society what Mecca is to the Mahomedans, or Benares to the Hindus, or Jerusalem to the Jew and to the Christian—the holy of holies of the idle rich, whose bible is the social register duly stamped with the dollar mark. Mrs. Drexel would widen the ranks of the select and admit many now barred from the social paradise, where nobles with decayed fortunes matrimonially browse. Mrs. Mills would none of this. She stands for a close corporation, so to speak, and would limit to 100 or even fewer those who would be entitled to enter the elect set of Newport.

Thus these two women, who are taken seriously enough by their followers, entered into a battle royal for social supremacy. Supporting Mrs. Drexel are scores of families, financially powerful, but hitherto barred from the Eden of the elect. Upholding Mrs. Mills are all those already within the inner sacred precincts, who love to shine by themselves and who do not wish to share the glories, privileges and prerogatives of their state with others.

DESCENDANT OF THE PROPHET

Will there ever be a holy war declared by Islam against her enemies? One, often meets with references to such possibility and since the declaration of war against Turkey by Italy these references have been more frequent than for many years before.

But there is little probability of such a crusade by the Mohammedans against the Christians, unless in the event of a European coalition, having for its object the dismemberment of Turkey in Europe and her expulsion from the continent. The authority for this is Mohammed Ali, whose portrait is shown, a descendant of the great prophet who founded the Mohammedan religion. Mohammed Ali is now in this country and he says that a holy war will never be declared unless the dismemberment of the Ottoman empire is threatened. Then, he says, there will be an uprising of the 175,000,000 Mohammedans scattered throughout the world.

These are dwellers in Asia and Africa, principally, many of them living under the British flag in India and others under the tri-color of France in northern Africa. He contends that the possibility of such an uprising will prevent the dismemberment of Turkey and asserts that the possibility would become an actuality with the formation of a coalition against the Ottoman empire.

Fashions in Dogs.

The fashion in dogs, says a sporting magazine, has always been as changeable as the fashions in women's dress—which is saying a great deal for the instability of man's canine tastes. The craze for something new has displaced all the old-time pets which found favor with both doggy men and women, and the "novelties" have one by one shared the same fate. If you glance through the catalog of a dog show at the present time you will find that most of the animals are foreigners, more remarkable for their physical oddities than either beauty, intelligence or usefulness. Pet dogs are like orchids, as regards fancy prices paid for rare specimens, and these highly priced pets, which today cost $500, will presently be selling at $5 apiece. The supply for these fashionable dogs soon exceeds the demand, and then comes the inevitable "slump." I am led into these remarks by hearing a lady deplore the fall in Pekinese toy spaniels. She gave $750, she says, for a pair, and now they would not realize more than $25. Courtesy forbids my making any comment upon this result.

Women Mountain Climbers.

Miss Mary Vall of Paris, France, and Miss Cornish of Boston have climbed 15 of the smaller peaks of the Swiss mountains and many of the higher of the Appalachian range, and this summer camped on Mount Kahladin, they being the first women who have ever made the ascent. They are perfectly at home in the rough camps and on the mountain trail, for which they wear the proper costumes.

Stirred Up!

"Our whole neighborhood has been stirred up," said the regular reader. The editor of the country weekly seized his pen. "Tell me all about it," he said. "What we want is news. What stirred it up?" "Plowing," said the farmer.

Single Tax in Canada. One of the chief issues in the coming election in Ontario, for members of the provincial parliament, will be the single tax idea. Already that idea is incorporated in the laws of several of the more western, newer communities of the dominion. Its popularity is reported as spreading throughout the whole country.

The first of this older, more conservative provinces to plan the matter before the voters in Ontario. It does not appear that the plan can succeed there—at least in the immediate future.

Still, the fact that it will be an issue in the election is evidence of the growing interest in the theories of Henry George.

Ancestor of the Dog.

It is supposed by some that the little wolf of India was the original ancestor of the dog. It is the only wild animal possessing the salient eyebrow, or crest of the dog. The little wolf has not only the dog's eyebrow crest, but all the canine characteristics, and none of the characteristics of the wolf.
